

If you're thinking about selling your home and you live in or near Reedsport, you should consider giving Norm a call. Norm is both a local home grown talent and professional real estate expert.

Norm grew up in Reedsport, knows the community and the surrounding areas but also is a professional applying the most up to date technology and sophisticated techniques and strategies.

When you hire Norm you get the technological advantages and work comparable to the agents in Portland, Seattle and other big cities. In short when you hire Norm you get the best of both worlds.

He utilizes the most up to date skills in marketing and real estate and makes sure that your property gets maximum exposure.

For smart phone users, great news. Norm has a code on all his flyers so interested prospects can scan the code through their phone and be taken to a virtual tour of your home.

He has an active web site, so clients can see your home and sends his clients market reports; holds broker opens, and knows and understands the market as well as is involved with the Oregon's MLS, and uses the correct forms.

He can advise you on how to get your house ready for the market. He puts prominent signs to advertise your home and for those that are not as technologically savvy uses simple FM radio advertising so interested buyers can have an audio tour of your home through their car radio when they drive by or are parked outside.

Norm listed my home in Reedsport and it sold in January 2012.

If you have any questions about Norm feel free to contact Norm and he can put you in touch with me.
